

HON. J. K. TENER TOLD ACCORDING TO PROGRAM

Is Notified Today of His Nomination for Governor

POPULARITY IS ATTESTED

Congratulations Bestowed Upon Charleroi Man by Friends

This afternoon at 2 o'clock at the headquarters of the Americus Club, Pittsburg, Congressman John K. Tener of Charleroi was officially notified of his nomination for Governor at the Republican State convention in Harrisburg on June 21. The other candidates for State office who were nominated at the same time also received their official notification. These are: Congressman John M. Reynolds of Bedford for Lieutenant Governor; Henry Houck of Lebanon for Secretary of Internal Affairs and Charles F. Wright of Susquehanna for State Treasurer.

This afternoon the candidates, together with State Chairman Walton and Chairman Vane of the notification committee, met at the office of Mayor

Hon. J. K. Tener.

Magee in Pittsburg and were driven in autos to the Americus Club, where the program as arranged was carried out. Mayor Magee presided, and Chairman Vane made the address informing the candidates of their nomination, to which all responded in speeches of acceptance. The event was attended by a large turnout of members of the Americus Club and representative Republicans from various parts of the State.

Mr. Tener went to Pittsburg yesterday afternoon where he visited Mayor Magee and was later joined by State Chairman Walton and other prominent Republicans who arrived from the east. They took dinner together, and discussed the political situation and plans of the campaign. Chairman Walton stated that the Republican party is united and will give Mr. Tener and the rest of the State ticket a bigger majority this fall than has ever been accorded a Governor. The third party movement, he said, would cut no appreciable figure in the result.

Chairman McClay intends to have the preliminary work of the campaign completed long before September 1.

WILL HOLD REUNION ON AUGUST 20

Chalfant Family Arranging for Third Gathering

HISTORY IS INTERESTING

Announcements have just been sent out to the various Chalfant connections throughout many States of the third annual reunion of the family to be held on Saturday, August 20, at Beechwood Park, opposite Belle Vernon on the Monongahela river. The place is the same where the second reunion was held in 1906, which was largely attended. It is expected that this reunion will prove the largest ever held by the family.

There is hardly a family in Western Pennsylvania which has a more interesting history than the Chalfant family. It is one of the oldest in the State, being of English ancestry. The records show that the first of the name, then spelled somewhat differently, came to America with William Penn and settled near Philadelphia. One of the descendants was born at Chadd's Ford on the Brandywine, in what is known as the old Chadd house, about the middle of the 18th century. He was named Chadds. Soon after his marriage with his bride he started out to find a home in the wilderness beyond the mountains. He stopped near Brownsville, and there constructed himself a home. He was the first Mason to cross the Alleghenies, and as soon as possible after the arrival of other immigrants in the neighborhood of Brownsville succeeded in instituting the first lodge there more than a century ago. He was also an ardent Methodist and local preacher, and hewed largely with his own hands the logs with which the first Methodist church of Brownsville was constructed. That was in 1776, and he died soon after, to be buried at the rear of the stone church which was later erected on the site of the log structure, his tomb being under the pulpit of the present First Methodist church of Brownsville.

Among the children born to this Chadds Chalfant was one Walter Brown Chalfant, the youngest of a family of seven. It is the descendant.

FIRST TOURING CAR BROUGHT HERE BURNED

Old Model Winton, Formerly Owned by Mrs. S. A. Walton, Wrecked on Nelson's Hill in Fallowfield

The Winton automobile, formerly owned by Mrs. S. A. Walton of North Charleroi was burned last night, after it had plunged over an embankment on Nelson's Hill about three miles from town. The machine was driven by Charles S. VanVoorhis and in it were three passengers. He had gone out some distance and was on the way back, just starting up the Nelson hill when the accident occurred. In changing the gear from high to low speed, the latter failed to catch at the proper time, and the brake did not hold. The automobile began plunging backward, and the passengers were forced to jump out. VanVoorhis tried to stop the machine but failed and the car upset over the hill. Gasoline took fire and in a short while the car was a wreck. The machine was one of the oldest in Charleroi, and was the first touring car brought to the town. It was purchased by Mrs. Walton, and used by her for some years and left behind when the family moved east. The machine because of the old model was not highly valued.

ENTIRE PROGRAM TO BE TAKEN UP WITH TALKS ON "PURE ATHLETICS"

Four Addresses Will be Made at Public Union Services at Christ Lutheran Church Sunday Evening

Almost the entire program at the union services Sunday evening for Church League baseball players and the public in general at Christ Lutheran church will be given over to the discussion of "Pure Athletics" by prominent Charleroi pastors, and league officials. All the churches in the league, St. Jerome's Catholic, Episcopal, Methodist, Christian, Washington Avenue Presbyterian, Lutheran, First Presbyterian and Baptist will take part. Besides the principal speakers all the pastors of the various churches will be given a part. The speakers and their topics are Rev. W. D. Fries, pastor of St. Jerome's Catholic church, "Pure Athletics," Jesse K. Johnston, president of Church League, "The Church's Attitude Toward Pure Athletics," Prof. I. T. Daniel, "The Sacrifices in Pure Athletics," Rev. G. G. Kerr, pastor of Washington Avenue church, "The Moral Value of Pure Athletics."

DEGREE TEAM TO PARTICIPATE IN INITIATORY RITES

Local Members of P. H. C. Will go to Donora Monday Evening

W. R. Stark, assistant deputy of the Pittsburgh district, Protected Home Circle and Clark Scott of Uniontown, were here last evening in the interests of the local P. H. C. and the local banner degree team. Arrangements are being made for a trip to Donora Monday by the degree team and a number of members of the local circle to assist in initiatory rites for a class of candidates to be induced into membership at the recently organized circle for a class of candidates. The local degree team under the direction of Mr. Stark will do the work. The local people will leave on the 8:17 train.

A new circle will be formed at Monongahela early in August, and a large membership is anticipated at the beginning.

HARD ON DOGS IN OLD FAYETTE

Big Killing by County Officials and Score is Now 400

The crack of rifles and revolvers was heard in every section of Fayette county yesterday and at almost every shot a dog fell. Reports received late last night from all sections of the county show 400 dogs "hit the dust." In Georgia township alone Constable A. Cooley and Tax Collector E. B. Swaney killed 201 dogs. The warfare will continue until all unlicensed or numuzzled dogs are exterminated. Tax collectors and constables are going about their districts armed with revolvers and rifles and whenever they see a dog without a license plate or muzzle they quickly kill it.

For several weeks a quarantine has been in force, but it was not strictly adhered to. On account of several dogs, afflicted with rabies, running at large the State Health authorities ordered the quarantine.

EPISCOPALS CAN HARDLY LOSE THE LEAGUE PENNANT

Next Two Weeks Witness Close of This Season's Struggle

The next two weeks will witness the closing of the Charleroi Church league for the season, and the winner of the pennant announced. The season has extended from the first of May, and the fight has been close all along with a degree of uncertainty still existing.

The Episcopalists look like winners. They are in the lead of the Christians, now occupying second place, by 167 points. The Episcopalists play two more games, one with the Christians and one with the Methodists. They would have to lose both and the Christians, who play the Episcopalists and Lutherans, win both to permit them to even be tied for first place.

All the rest of the places are very much in doubt. At present it looks as though the Methodists, Christians or Catholics would finally occupy second, third and fourth places, but in what order is mere guess. The Washington Avenue and Lutherans are expected to contest for fifth place, but either team may beat one of the other three out of third or fourth place, or by a wonderful streak of luck, even out of second place. The Baptists and First Presbyterians will likely contest for seventh and last places, but there is a possibility of either of them rising above that.

The games next week are: Monday—Lutherans vs. Catholics; Tuesday—W. A. Presbyterians vs. Baptists; Wednesday—Methodists vs. W. A. Presbyterians; Thursday—Methodists vs. First Presbyterians; Friday—Christians vs. Episcopalists.

Funeral Is Largely Attended by Friends

Remains of Mrs. Speakman Interred at McKeesport This Morning

The funeral last night of Mrs. Mary E. Speakman was largely attended by friends and relatives of the deceased. Rev. A. M. Doak of the Methodist Episcopal church of Charleroi had charge of the services, and was assisted by a son-in-law of Mrs. Speakman, Rev. R. B. Mansell of Scottdale. Interment was in the McKeesport cemetery today with private services. The pall bearers were W. R. McKean, John Hogan, John Crawford, John H. Frye, C. S. McKean and T. P. Grant.

WHO WILL BEAR THE EXPENSE?

Acheson Overdoing Himself in Eagerness to Call Convention

A BIT OF INFORMATION

It is stated over at the county seat that the announcement that Ernest F. Acheson was circulating a petition for a court house Monday for the purpose of organizing for the proposed third party and selecting delegates to the Philadelphia convention that has been called to meet Thursday, July 28, to nominate a State ticket, was somewhat premature, to the promoters. The affair was to be pulled off quietly so far as preliminaries were concerned, in order to give it the appearance of a spontaneous surprising of voters and citizens. Now that the secret has become known before enough representatives of the movement could be drummed up to attend the court house meeting, Mr. Acheson is said to be exceedingly wroth at some of his "free men," in the language of the State call, for leaking the secret.

One of the reasons, and the chief one, by the way, for keeping the proposed county call quiet until all the possible signatures could be secured, is that all who sign the call will be financially responsible for all the expenses, bills and debts that may be contracted in the county campaign. This was learned by the refusal of a number of well known independents over the State to sign the call of the rump State convention at Philadelphia next Thursday.

This explains why so few of those who were expected to take a part in the movement signed the call that was published this week. Some of these had learned by bitter experience that such a call for a convention for a party that has no existence makes the signers the party itself, and therefore responsible for all campaign debts that may be contracted. It is said to be the same with calls for a county organization for a new party. Those who sign the call for a convention become the party, and therefore responsible for its debts.

Burglars Operate at Home of Dr. D. E. Kimmell

FAIL TO GET ANY MONEY

Content Themselves With Taking Fruit and Eatables From Kitchen

For the second time within a month burglars last night entered the home of Dr. D. E. Kimmell at 612 McKean avenue, but failed to make as rich a haul as they did on the previous occasion. Entrance was effected through a transom over a back door, and the lower part of the house was thoroughly ransacked apparently for money, which was not to be found. The burglars contented themselves then with taking some fruit and edibles from the kitchen and from the refrigerator on the back porch.

It is supposed that a small boy was one of the marauders and that he was the one to get through the transom to unlock the kitchen door. This morning on the back porch was found a shoe box which had been carried from Sixth street and on top of this a large fruit basket. On the transom were fingerprints. Black fingerprints were on a towel in the kitchen, where the marauders had wiped their hands.

The sideboard was ransacked and the down stairs rooms thoroughly searched. Not being able to find anything there, it is supposed the thieves went to the kitchen and here helped themselves to table delicacies. From the refrigerator on the porch they took a quantity of fruit. A market basket was used to carry the stuff away. The police were notified early this morning and are now working on the few clues they have.

Edgar Leyda of Monongahela was a caller in Charleroi recently.

Those who have had experience in such movements know of the expenses attached, such as clerical hire, postage, carfare, traveling expenses, printing, hotel bills, salaries of canvassers in effecting an organization, advertising, hall rent and a thousand other items. When it is considered that it is extremely difficult to meet these expenses by the old political parties, and that many of these bills are footed by individuals, or by levying assessments on candidates, it will be seen that the promoters of a new party are responsible to the full extent of their personal resources.

This has caused many who were inclined to be disaffected to steer clear of the movement. A political campaign is a most expensive luxury, and with a hopeless cause, a party to launch and organize, and issues to create, the apathetic public cannot be stirred up without an undue expenditure of the currency of the realm. Those who are at the head of the movement out of motives of possible spoils or revenge, can go ahead and contract debts which the signers to the State and county calls for the conventions will be personally responsible. This of itself is sufficient to doom the movement before it is even born.

Paying the Piper

Those who dance must pay the piper, and by the same token those who sign a petition for a call to organize and launch a new political party must likewise be financially responsible for all the expenses incurred in the campaign by that party.
That being the case, and when it becomes generally known, those inclined to follow the fortunes of the so-called independent political movement in the State and county will have a care how they ally themselves with such an organization. It is apt to prove somewhat expensive.

This obstacle has already been encountered in the call for a rump convention at Philadelphia next Thursday.
The call was signed by a surprisingly few names, in view of the positive assertions that people were falling over each other in order to become allied with the movement. When it was stated that those who signed the call would be financially responsible for all campaign debts incurred, there was a noticeable cooling of the insurgency ardor. To launch and organize a new party and conduct an aggressive campaign will require a big sum of money, and if this is not secured before hand, those who sign calls for the State and county conventions will be financially responsible for the expenses of the respective campaigns.

State Should Act

In view of the large number of dogs that are supposed to have been bitten by others affected with rabies in this county, the State Health officials should impose a quarantine on all canines and prevent them from running at large in the townships and boroughs. The State officials have declared quarantines in various other counties and parts of counties, with good effect, and no section is in greater need

of this precaution than the Beallsville and Scenery Hill district, which is contiguous to Charleroi. There a dog pronounced affected with hydrophobia by competent authority is known to have bitten several other dogs in that vicinity, and the whole community, including Charleroi, is in danger. In Fayette county, or in portions of it at least, the State Health authorities pronounced a quarantine on dogs. As it was not strictly adhered to the officials got after the unattached canies and in one day this week it is stated that at least 400 dogs were slain.
This sort of precaution materially reduces the dangers of hydrophobia, and it should be inaugurated in Washington county.

Cure for Mob Law

Mob law in Ohio is not such an exponent of justice as many persons who chafe the law's delays and uncertainties are prone to believe. A number of those who took part in the recent lynching of the Anti-Saloon League detective at Newark, in that State, now find themselves in jail
with the prospect of a first degree murder indictment hanging over them.
Murder is murder, whether by an individual or by a mob, and each are equally culpable before the law.

All that is necessary to stop lynchings is for the authorities to act promptly and indict some of the leaders for murder in the first degree.
Such a proceeding would soon put an end to mobs taking the law into their own hands. The State officials of Ohio have acted promptly in this direction and Governor Harmon is to be congratulated for his courage and decision in upholding the law in his State. His action, if carried through to a finish, will do more toward putting a stop to lynchings than any other means that has yet been employed.
Mob leaders who are certain to face a murder charge will have no desire to engage in the vocation.

CURE YOUR KIDNEYS

Do Not Endanger Life When a Charleroi Citizen Shows You the Cure.

Why will people continue to suffer the agonies of kidney complaint, backache, urinary disorders, lameness,
headaches, languor, why allow themselves to become chronic invalids,
when a certain cure is offered them?
Doan's Kidney Pills is the remedy
to use, because it gives to the kidneys the help they need to perform their work.

If you have any, even one, of the symptoms of kidney diseases, cure yourself now, before diabetes, dropsy or Bright's disease sets in. Read this Charleroi testimony:
Mrs. B. Mahoney, 823 McKean

There Should.

Fritz, the gardener, was a stolid German who was rarely moved to extraordinary language. Even the most provocative occasions only caused him to remark mildly on his ill luck. Not long ago he came back from the city in the late evening after a hard day in the market place. He was sleepy, and the train being crowded, the baggage man gave him a chair in his roomy car.

Finally the train reached Bloomfield.
Fritz still slept as it pulled in, and his friend had to shake him and tell him where he was.

"I thank you," said Fritz as he rose slowly to his feet. The open door of the car was directly in front of him. He walked straight out of it.

The baggage man sprang to look after him. Fritz slowly picked himself up from the sand by the side of the track, looked up at the door and said,
with no wrath in his voice:

"There should here be some steps."
—Youth's Companion.

A Wonderful Feat.

In its review of Pierre de Vassiere's book "Le Mort du Roi" the Neueste Nachrichten dwells upon the account of the last seven minutes of Louis XVI. as described in the book. These were between 10:15, when the king arrived at the foot of the guillotine, and 10:22, "when a shot fired at the end of the Champs Elysees, no one knows by whom, gave notice that the head had fallen." The review calls attention to the statement by the author that the king's hands had been pinioned behind him by the executioner while Louis was putting on the coat which he was to wear at the end and that when he reached the platform of the instrument of death he rushed unassisted to the upright farthest from the stairway, "slapping the face of one of the assistant executioners who tried to stop him." With hands fastened at his back, the reviewer asks, "How did the doomed monarch manage to perform the operation?"

Etiquette by Precedent.

For example of how men may live
and act according to precedent there can be no better reference than to the lord chamberlain's office in London.
There in quiet rooms day after day
men learned in state etiquette, court dress and royal functions reach down heavy volumes to see what was done on such and such an occasion. Beautiful pictures showing with minute accuracy the details of the court costume under various circumstances are ready to their hands. Is the shah of Persia coming? Is the Kaiser soon to arrive? Is the king going to receive the monarch of Siam? Is one of the royal princesses to be married? When any of these events happens the officials at the lord chamberlain's office know exactly what to do. And if some point should crop up which has not been raised for a century or more they have the faithful official records
occasion.

Eccentricities In Palaces.

The Russian Empress Anne built a great palace of ice and on occasions when the fancy seized her punished several of her dainty courtiers by compelling them to pass the night in this great chamber of state, where they were almost frozen to death.

The Czar Paul constructed a room formed entirely of huge mirrors when-he spent hours walking to and fro in full uniform—a singular taste for the ugliest man in Russia.

One of the native princes of Java cooled his palace by making a stream fall in a cascade over the gateway,
and the Indian despot Tipu Sahib placed beside his dinner table a life size figure of a tiger devouring an English officer, the roar of the beast and the shrieks of the victim being imitated by hidden machinery.

The River Tinto.

There is in Spain a river called the Tinto, which has very extraordinary qualities. Its waters, which are as yellow as a topaz, harden the sand and perforate it in a most surprising manner.
If a stone falls into the river and rests upon another they both become perfectly united and conglutinated in a year. It withers all the plants on its banks as well as the roots of trees, which it dyes of the same hue as its

A Creature From the Fire.

Aristotle believed that some creatures were capable of supporting life even though confined to the devouring element. He says: "In Cyprus, when the manufacturers of charcoal (lime-burn) many days in the fire, a winged creature something larger than a great fly is seen emerging from the stone and leaping and walking about in the fire. These creatures perish immediately upon being removed from the furnace."

Before and After.

The Adorer—It's wonderful, old man,
what love will enable a fellow to see
in a girl that he never saw before.
The Onlooker—No doubt, but it's equally wonderful what it won't let him see that he'll see later.

Biblical Instruction.

"What does exegesis mean, father?"
"I can never remember long what it does mean. It is something theological—probably a combination of Exodus and Genesis, about like Deuteronomy."

Very Bad Signs.

Pausanias, the Greek general, died of self administered poison. When holly pursued by those sent to apprehend him on a charge of treason and sacrilege he took refuge in the sanctuary of a temple. Unable to remove him by force and also unwilling to violate the sanctuary, the officers walled up the entrance and began to un-roof the building. When he could be seen they noticed that he was chewing something which proved to be a quill filled with poison. By the time the work had sufficiently advanced to admit of their entrance he was in a dying condition.

Pottery and Secrecy.

In the royal manufactory of pottery at Meissen, Saxony, the work was formerly carried on with the utmost secrecy to prevent the processes from becoming known elsewhere. The establishment was a complete fortress,
the portcullis of which was not raised day or night, no stranger being permitted to enter for any purpose whatever. Every workman, even the chief inspector, was sworn to silence. This injunction was formally repeated every month to the superior officers employed, while the workmen had constantly before their eyes in large letters the warning motto, "Be Secret Unto Death." It was well known that any person divulging the process would be imprisoned for life in the castle of Koenigstein. Even the king himself when he took strangers of distinction to visit the works was enjoined to secrecy. One of the foremen, however, escaped and assisted in establishing a manufactory in Vienna, from which the secrets spread all over Germany.

Her Diamond Necklace.

Brown is a very careful man. He is superlatively careful. So careful is he that he has insured his insurance money.

Now, Brown has a wife. Wives have to be given birthday presents, and on his wife's first birthday after their marriage he gave her a beautiful diamond necklace. This was not as reckless as you might think, for each stone on the necklace represented a year of Mrs. Brown's life, and he let every one know that. And he arranged to give Mrs. Brown a new diamond each birthday. And he let the neighbors know that too.

He has just missed giving his wife a birthday present for the ninth successive year.

As to when greed will conquer pride and his wife will ask for another birthday present, we shall have to wait and see.—Pearson's.

The Salt Charm Failed.

Some three years before the Franco-German war broke out Count Secken-dorff accompanied King William I. on his visit to Napoleon III. and was present at the celebrated dejeuner given in the Pavillon de Diane at Fontainebleau. King William, who was sitting next the empress, was asked by her to pass the salt, and in complying with this request he threw a little salt over his shoulder. Upon the empress exclaiming, "Why do you do that?" the king explained that in his country it was the custom to do so when passing the salt to ward off bad luck and any chance of a quarrel. The empress in a prettily turned speech at once replied, "But surely there is no danger of anything interfering with our friendship." In less than three years the Germans had crossed the Rhine.—London Spectator.

Why Not Pass the Plate?

They ought to pass the plate at church weddings. It comes natural to do it in church, and to do so would add a pretty and useful employment to the duties of the ushers, who always have a little spare time before the bride arrives. And, really, getting married is more expensive than ever,
and, though wedding presents are excellent in their way, what the young people usually need the most is cash.
Instead of the list of gifts which the newspapers sometimes print we should
000." That would be nice. It is much easier to store and care for money than plate and glass! And money always fits and there is no such thing as an embarrassing duplication of dollars.

He Saved the Patent Office.

When in the war of 1812 the British,
who had taken Washington, trained their guns upon the patent office, Dr.
Thornton, throwing himself directly
before the guns, cried:

"Are you Englishmen or Goths and Vandals? This is the patent office—a depository of the ingenuity and inventions of the American nation, in which
the whole civilized world is interested.
Would you destroy it? Then let the charge pass through my body."

And the building was spared. Twenty-four years afterward, however, it was destroyed by fire, together with everything in it.

In Westminster Abbey.

Fox's tomb is perhaps the most ridiculous in the abbey, but others run it hard—the naked figure of General Wolfe supported by one of his staff in full regimentals and receiving a crown from Victory; William Wilberforce apparently listening to Sheridan telling a comic tale and contorting his features in the endeavor not to laugh;
the Sir Cloudesley Shovel, in periwig and Roman toga, which excited the mirth even of contemporaries, and all the monuments erected by the East India company, with palm trees and other tropical exuberances, to the memory of great soldiers, like Sir Eyre Coote. From the point of view of good taste a dictator would be justified in dismissing these and many more to the stonemason's yard.—Cornhill Magazine.

Why the Wind Waits.

In his book on "The Picturesque St.
Lawrence" Clifton Johnson tells of the curious superstition of Montreal which explains why the wind is always blowing at the point where St.
Sulpice and Notre Dame streets meet,
close by the towering cathedral.

It seems that one day, while the church was in process of building, the Wind and the Devil were walking down Notre Dame street, and the Devil after regarding with a frown of disapproval the graceful outlines of the new edifice rising before him exclaimed:

"What is this? I never saw it before."

"Very likely not," responded the Wind, "and I dare to go in there."

"You dare not to go that way," cried the Devil, "I see that. Well, I will go in if you will promise to wait here until I come out."

"Agreed," said the Wind.

So his satanic majesty went in. But he has not come out yet, and the Wind
is still waiting for him at the corner.

The Spirit of Liberty.

It was in the town that modern democracy had its rise. Despite all the efforts of the kings and barons to prevent it, the spirit of liberty began to assert itself in the larger towns in the shape of the charters which guaranteed to the people certain commercial and political rights—rights which, once obtained, were never to be surrendered.
Before the middle of the eleventh century there were many of these "chartered" towns which possessed the right of electing their own magistrates, sheriffs and judges and regulating their own taxes. The wretched serfs from the country were welcomed by the townspeople and added to larger freedom. These free towns were first known in Spain, from which country they slowly spread over Europe. The burghesses naturally offered protection
and freedom to all who would flee to them from the feudal estates, and thus slowly, but surely, the good work went on until the ancient despotisms were destroyed.—Arena.

Reptiles That Walk Erect.

Lizards of several sorts can walk
and run easily on their hind legs. The Australian water lizard, which is three or four feet in length, keeps quite erect when traversing long distances on land. It is found in the neighborhood of river banks and passes much of its time in shallow water.

The frilled lizard of Queensland also travels on its hind legs on level ground, keeping the frill folded when running.
When attacked it expands this fold of skin, which stands out like a ruff at right angles round the neck, giving it a most formidable aspect, so that dogs that attack and kill larger lizards will often retreat before a frilled lizard at bay.

There is also a tree lizard in Australia that moves in a similar way. All these species walk on all fours when merely moving about or going short distances.

Couldn't Hear Them.

"I've been worried about my hearing for some time," said a recent banker, who tells the story on himself, "and finally the fear of getting deaf became a sort of obsession to me, and I decided to go over to New York to consult a specialist. I got over there and went to see the doctor, and he looked so grave I was more scared than ever, and I was feeling pretty blue as I walked down Fifth avenue with a friend.

"Suddenly I saw two 'special trolleys' coming down a cross street filled with children waving flags and apparently having an awfully good time, but I couldn't hear a sound. In an instant, without stopping to realize that I could hear all the other noises of the traffic and my friend's voice, I turned around and seized him by the arm and shouted:

"Heavens, Jo, I'm deaf! I can't hear those children at all."
"Neither can I," said my friend, with a roar of laughter. "

SHOOTING WHALES.

Modern Whalers Use a Cannon and an Explosive Harpoon.

Whaling with modern methods in Alaskan waters is an exciting game, especially for those who are new to the business. The modern whaling steamer is a little vessel almost round on the bottom, which enables it to be turned and managed with the greatest ease. Mounted at the bow is a small cannon that shoots a harpoon weighing more than 100 pounds and having an explosive head, called the bomb.

After a whale has been killed the carcass is brought alongside the boat and inflated so that it will float. A long coil of rubber hose, one end of which is attached to a pump and the other to a hollow spear pointed tube of steel, with perforations along its entire length, is used for this purpose. The spear is thrust well down into the whale's side, the air pump started and the body slowly filled with air. When inflated enough to keep it afloat the tube is withdrawn, the incision plugged with oakum and the carcass cast off. A buoy with a flag is attached to the body, and it is then set adrift to be picked up at the end of the day's hunting.

The whaling station is a group of buildings situated in a bay or cove near enough to the feeding grounds to allow the steamer to come in each night with the day's catch. The whales are anchored at a buoy in front of a long, inclined platform, upon which they are drawn, tail first, by means of a steam winch.

The saying that every part of the pig but the squeal is now of market value is also a fact with the whale. Not a particle of the animal is wasted. After the skeleton is stripped of flesh it is disarticulated and the bones chopped in pieces.

The blubber is tried out for oil, and the meat and bones are boiled for the same purpose. Later the flesh is artificially dried and sifted, making a fine guano, and the bones are ground up for fertilizer. Even the blood is boiled and dried with the flesh, and the water in which the blubber has been tried out makes excellent glue. The fins and tail, after being sliced into thin strips, are salted and barreled and shipped to Japan as an article of food.

Planning Ahead.

"Theater parties," said the prospective bride, "will cost about $200 annually, flowers as much more and bonbons, say, $100. Certainly we can marry on $600 a year."

"And have a snug surplus," suggested her dad, "for such incidentals as grub and clothes and house rent."

PATTI'S EARNINGS.

The Famous Prima Donna a Fine Business Woman.

Adelina Patti never suffered from the financial timidity of a Jenny Lind. Not only was she a supreme vocalist, but, as Colonel Mapleson remarked, "No one ever approached her in the art of obtaining from a manager the greatest possible sum he could by any possibility contrive to pay." But the musical miracle was the spoiled darling of her day, and she never failed to obtain exactly what she wanted. She was first engaged in London, in 1861, by Mapleson, to sing four nights "on approval" and, in case of success, to obtain £40 a week. This contract was not fulfilled, however, for, being hard pressed financially, she had borrowed £50 from a rival manager, and her receipt proved practically a contract.

This was the beginning of a career so dazzling that its successive steps are simply a series of increasing bank notes. In 1872 she obtained in London 200 guineas a night, since she insisted on having more than Christine Nilsson, who was receiving £200. She sang twice a week. Ten years later she was given $5,000 a night. Her famous contract to sing in America provided that the money should be paid to her at 2 o'clock on the day she sang; also a drawing room and sleeping car to be especially built for her, with conservatory, fernery, etc. Further, there was to be deposited to her credit $50,000 for payment of the last ten performances—Patti's favorite device. She thus received about twenty times what Marie and Grisi got.

Her private car, incidentally, cost $60,000 and contained a silver bath and gold keys to the doors, to say nothing of a $2,000 piano. Patti gave to the manager only her voice and her costumes. Her drawing capacity justified this. "Lucia," as an example, was sung to an average of $14,000. "Traviata" drew more, since she sang more notes. It was a frequent occurrence among the poorer music lovers to buy a club ticket and each take turns at hearing her for twenty minutes. If one overstayed his time he paid for the entire ticket. Some mathematicians computed by dividing the number of notes sung into the sum paid that in "Semiramide" Patti received 42½ cents for each note. This was found to be just 7 1-10 cents per note more than Rossini got for writing the whole opera.

RACE WAGERS IN INDIA.

Native's Method of Choosing a Winner and Making Bets.

The native of India wagers his money according to the colors worn by the jockeys and takes no heed of the merits of the horses, or he will back a horse ridden by his favorite jockey, no matter whether the animal is a rank outsider or not.

His ideas of gambling, in fact, are distinctly novel. Some of the more wealthy Indians form rings and back every horse in the race, thus gaining the satisfaction of getting a winner every time. It is really only of late years that the native of India has become a habitual gambler on the turf, and nowadays the bulk of the betting of the various racing centers in India is done by natives. Indeed, the authorities are somewhat concerned about the growth of the betting which takes place among Indian natives, it being asserted that as many as thirty lacs of rupees (about $300,000) is lost and won in the course of a season.

The ignorant masses have not a great deal of actual money to wager, but so badly bitten are many of them with the craze for betting at race meetings that they frequently wager what little property they possess on a horse, and if they lose they simply replace their loss by stealing a neighbor's goods. The consequence is that when the racing season comes around the police are kept very busy dealing with cases of petty larceny and other crimes involving loss of property.

BILL LANGE'S FEAT.

One of the Famous Old Outfitter's Sensational Catches.

The greatest individual feat ever performed was one by which Bill Lange saved a game for Chicago and $200 for himself in Washington in 1895. There is an odd story connected with the play. Lange had missed a train in Boston two days before, failed to reach New York in time to play there, and Anson had lined him $100. Thereupon he missed a train to Washington—arrived on the grounds after the teams had practiced and just in time to play, and for that Anson fined him another $100. The game that afternoon went eleven innings. Chicago scoring one run in the eleventh. There were two men out and a runner on the bases when "Kip" Selbach, then one of the hardest hitters in the business, smote the ball a terrific blow and sent it flying over Lange's head toward the center field fence. The hit seemed a sure home run, but Lange, a man weighing 225 pounds, turned and without looking sprinted desperately straight out toward the fence, racing with the flying ball. At the last instant as the ball was going over his head, Lange leaped, stuck up both hands, turned a somersault and crashed against the fence. The boards splintered, one entire panel crashed outward, and out of the wreckage crawled Lange, holding the ball in his hand, and the crowd went mad. Lange came limping in, with the crowd standing on seats shouting, and he said to Anson, "Fines go, cap?" "Nope," said Anson, and the catch had saved the big fielder $200.—Hugh S. Fullerton in American Magazine.

THE MYSTERY OF MARS.

Old but Unsolved Problem, Is There Animal Life on the Planet?

With a planet so old as Mars and so far along in the process of life extinction the conditions of life would be severe, and only a highly intellectual and scientifically developed race could endure and master them. The engineering skill and constructive capacity to control the annual floods from the poles, store the waters and build the thousands of miles of huge canals would require scientific knowledge beyond that possessed by us at the present time and financial resources in excess of those we have yet accumulated. The nation that finds the digging of a little ditch at Panama so great a task would be helpless in the face of such a problem as these thousands of miles of Martian canals, if, indeed, canals they be. Yet, in view of the greater life age of Mars, such higher intelligence would be natural in the regular process of development, assuming that it has ever been the abode of intellectual life.

Scientists are in the main in a receptive state on this subject. They are not ready to admit that the existence of life on that planet has been proved. They do not deny it, but call for greater proof than a plausible theory. Among others than scientists there is in the main a disposition not to accept the Martian human life theory or the theory of life on any of the thousands of spheres that wheel and glister in illimitable space. They seem to think that such a theory conflicts with religion and dwarfs man and his importance in the scheme of creation.

This seems to be a very narrow view to take, since it appears to set bounds upon the infinite power and creative desires of the Almighty, whose great scheme of mortal and immortal life is not necessarily confined to a single planet or the few billions of human beings who are born and die upon it. As to dwarfing the importance of man, a few billions more added to the billions on earth would make little difference. Man is at best a small and insignificant creature, but if all embracing wisdom, power and love takes so solicitous note of him it would be limiting those infinite qualities to say that one planet must be his abiding place. Therefore the question of human intelligence on Mars or any other planet of the solar system or of other great systems in remote space should be purely and simply a scientific one, to be accepted as true only when proved, but not to be rejected through sentiment or for any other reason whatever except lack of proof.—St. Louis Star

FILIAL DUTY.

An Example From the Chinese of a Good Little Boy.

In China the "Book of Filial Duty" has been employed to instruct the young for the last 2,500 years. In it are twenty-four examples for good boys. What these examples are like may be understood from the story of Wu Meng, example No. 20. Wu Meng it seems, was very obedient to his parents. One day at the age of eight he noticed with pain that the mosquitoes annoyed his parents while they were trying to sleep. Presently he hit upon a plan to rescue them.

Says the author of this classic: "The buzzing of the mosquitoes sounds like 'ying ying,' and their united hum is almost equal to thunder. His tired parents are reclining on their bed, their countenances already sunk in slumber. Legions of mosquitoes fiercely attack them, alternately retreating and advancing. The insects disturb the dreaming sleepers, and with annoyance they toss from side to side. "Wu sees them sucking his parents' blood, which causes his heart to grieve. His flesh, he thinks, can be easily pierced, but that of his parents is hard to penetrate. Lying on the bed, he threw off his clothes, and soon, feeling the pain of their attacks, he cried, 'I have no dread of you, nor have you any reason to fear me! "Although I have a fan, I will not use it, nor will I strike you with my hand. I will lie very quiet and let you gorge to the full!"

Thus did the parents of Wu Meng get a chance to sleep in peace.

THE MONEY QUESTION.

An Inquisitive Youngster and an Ingenious Father.

"Papa," began Gunston Junior, "when the government of the United States began to coin gold and silver money, it was necessary to buy the gold and silver, wasn't it?"

"Yes, my son," replied Gunston senior rather cautiously.

"Of course, papa," resumed the youngster, "you'll be able to tell me where the government got the money to buy the gold and silver."

"Why—er—of course," stammered Gunston senior as he put down the paper and gazed thoughtfully at the boy.

"Now, let me understand you. The government wanted to coin money, and in order to do so it was necessary to purchase gold and silver. You want to know where the government got the money to buy the gold and silver?"

"That's right," chuckled Gunston junior gleefully, and a great joy filled his being as he thought of his all important sire struggling with the simple question.

"Why, sonny, the government simply issued dollar bills and bought gold and silver with them. Anything else?"

"Yes," said Gunston Junior. "Where did the government get money to buy paper for the dollar bills?"

CHEERFUL OUTLOOK.

Making It Pleasant For the Stodious Traveler.

An English tourist traveling on foot through one of our mountainous regions, studying the people, asked a man whom he met to direct him to a certain cabin at which he had been advised to stay overnight. "Going that?" said the man. "Well, Tom's a first rater, take him just right, but he's mighty queer."

"What do you mean?" asked the traveler.

"Well, it's like this," and the man looked at the stranger in a calm, impersonal way. "He'll be setting outside, most probably, and he'll see you coming. He'll take a good look at you, and if you don't suit him he may set the dog on you."

"If he don't and you get to talking with him and say anything he don't just like he may throw you down and tramp on you. But if you're too careful in your talk, on the other hand, he's liable to take you for a spy and use his gun fast and listen to explanations afterward."

"But it's no use trying to get by without stopping," concluded the man, with evident relish of the prospect he was opening up to the stranger. "If you was to undertake that 'twould be all up with you, for he'd think you was proud and biggity."

"If you want to come out of the mountain whole, don't go past Tom's cabin without stopping, whatever you do!"—Youth's Companion.

The Strenuous National Game of the American Women.

There is always something impressive about a crowd that is swayed by a single emotion. You got an impression of force, says Mary Heaton Vorse in Success Magazine. These women, who a few moments ago had been quiet shoppers, formed a mob. They swayed and pushed as though moved by a common impulse toward a table where were the embroideries. From their throats came a little dull growl, a curious noise—the whisper of a mob.

The noise of a mob in joy or in anger or in fright or just its restless murmur as it waits is different from any other noise that comes from the human throat—quite distinct, of a curious animal timber. I heard it once on the occasion of the throwing of a bomb, again from a crowd waiting for a bank to open and a third time in a theater when fire had been called, and now here it was in miniature from a couple of hundred women waiting to buy ten cent embroideries.

They were poor women with shawls and baskets, women with babies in their arms, women with threadbare clothes carefully brushed, who must think before spending each dime in the dollar, but for once indulging in the great sport of American women—bargain hunting.

Fashions in Borneo.

According to the rules of Bornean fashion it is deemed necessary to mold one's limbs into a more shapely form than that bestowed by nature. This is done really effectively by winding strong brass wire round the ankles, the wrists, under the knees and above the elbows of children. Growth at these points is, in consequence, greatly hampered, with the result that the limbs come to be deformed or, according to Dyak ideas, brought into proper shape. The headdress consists of a curious headroom cap, and around his neck a bridegroom to be wears bangles of plaited fiber and strings of cowrie shells. These shells, by the way, as in other parts of the world, are used as currency. A yard of fiber or twenty to thirty cowrie shells represent the value of a penny. The white armlets are made of another species of shells.

—Wide World Magazine.

What a Toad Enjoys.

There are few things more amusing than to watch a toad submitting to the operations of a back scratching. He will at first look somewhat suspiciously at the twig which you are advancing toward him, but after two or three passes down his back his manner undergoes a marked change, his eyes close with an expression of infinite rapture, he plants his feet wider apart, and his body swells out to nearly double its ordinary size, as if to obtain by these means more room for enjoyment. Thus he will remain until you make some sudden movement which startles him or until he has had as much petting as he wants, when, with a puff of regretful delight, he will reduce himself to his usual dimensions and hop away, bent once more on the pleasures of the chase.

In Hearing.

They stood upon the crest of the mountain and gazed off through the purple distances.

"Darling," he whispered, bending closer, "give me a kiss—just one!"

"No, Clarence," she answered timidly, "some one will hear us. There may be other ears around."

"Other ears? Why should you think so, dearest?"

"Oh, because I have so often heard of mountaineers I thought perhaps there might be some around, and—"

But just then there was a mighty crash. A mountain goat had heard the awful pun and jumped over the cliff.—London Tatler.

Revenge.

"That organist Belle flitted for the aged millionaire played a spiteful trick at her wedding."

"What did he do?"

"Instead of playing them up with the wedding march 'Old Hundred.'"

LOCAL MENTION Will Hold Reunion

on August 20

Interesting News Items Condensed for Busv Readers.

Mr. and Mrs. Christopher Brown, Sr., and son, Alfred, have left for an extended trip east taking in New York, Atlantic City, Philadelphia, Baltimore and Washington, D. C.

Miss Anna Craven of Beallsville was calling on friends here today.

Guy Horn of Beallsville was a recent caller in town.

Miss Nelle Meason after spending her vacation with relatives in Charleroi has returned to her home at Pennsville.

Miss Lulu E. Trew left Saturday morning on a visit among friends and relatives in Uniontown, Lemont, Mt. Braddock, Dunbar and Pennsville.

ents of this Walter Brown Chalfant who first made arrangements for holding the first reunion and who are holding one every few years. Descendants of other children of Chaddis Chalfant are welcomed, however. Walter married Mollie Budd Brown and they raised a family of eleven. eight sons and three daughters. The sons were Chaddis, Samuel B., James W., Fletcher F., Henry S., Charles B., William B., and Duncan. The daughters were Eliza Emily, Margaret, and Anna Sweitzer. To date the descendants of Walter and Mollie Chalfant number something over three hundred. The family has been largely Methodists but there are many Presbyterians and Baptists.

It is the expectation that many of the connection living in central and southern Ohio and States further west will be present. The Rev. Dr. George W. Chalfant, a Presbyterian divine of Pittsburg, Judge Henry W. Chalfant of Missouri, and Rev. H. M. Chalfant, editor of the Keystone Citizen at Harrisburg, and others are expected to make addresses.

The reunion this year is being arranged by a committee of three, Attorney O. S. Chalfant of Washington, Pa., Mrs. Ida Booth of Webster, and Alva Chalfant of Fayette county. Members of the family are scattered throughout several States, but in southwestern Pennsylvania, principally in Fayette and Washington counties, they are found in greater numbers than in any other community.

Beechwood Park is a beautiful grove, containing much natural scenery, and is situated along the Pittsburg and Charleroi trolley lines, and along the P. V. and C. railroad. Guests coming from a distance are expected to go either to Belle Vernon and cross the river or else come to Charleroi and thence by street railway to the park.

Notice.

To the members of the Hill Top Athletic Club: All members who are interested in the club will please report for a special meeting to be held in the club room on Sunday, the 24th of July, at 2 o'clock sharp.

BAPTISTS BEAT PRESBYTERIANS IN FINAL ROUND

Overcome Lead and Score Winning Run With
Two Out

By overcoming a lead in the final inning with two out, the Baptists succeeded in winning from the First Presbyterians last evening. The game was somewhat of a hit and run affair and was featured by the number of good solid cracks. The Baptists scored one in the first on a life and a single. On five hits for seven bases, an error and a stolen base the Presbyterians earnestly chased around four runs in the second session, to follow up this record by scoring one in the fourth on a passed ball, and this ended their score getting. The Baptists got around twice in the fourth on four hits for a total of five bases, and a stolen base. By scoring one in the sixth they made preparations for a final inning rally. In that last session Sample biffed one for two bases, then went third on an out to score when Coliffe slammed the pill for two. Coliffe went third on Morris, single, and scored on Motts, single. The score:

WILL HOLD REUNION ON AUGUST 20

for Third Gathering

Announcements have just been sent out to the various Chalfant connections throughout many States of the third annual reunion of the family to be held on Saturday, August 20, at Beachwood Park, opposite Belle Vernon on the Monongahela river. The place is the same where the second reunion was held in 1908, which was largely attended. It is expected that this reunion will prove the largest ever held by the family.

There is hardly a family in Western Pennsylvania which has a more interesting history than the Chalfant family. It is one of the oldest in the State, being of English ancestry. The records show that the first of the name, then spelled somewhat differently, came to America with William Penn and settled near Philadelphia. One of the descendants was born at Chadd's Ford on the Brandywine, in what is known as the old Chadd house, about the middle of the 18th century. He was named Chadda. Soon after his marriage with his bride he started out to find a home in the wilderness beyond the mountains. He stopped near Brownsville, and there constructed himself a home. He was the first Mason to cross the Alleghenies, and as soon as possible after the arrival of other immigrants in the neighborhood of Brownsville succeeded in instituting the first lodge there more than a century ago. He was also an ardent Methodist and local preacher, and hewed largely with his own hands the logs with which the first Methodist church of Brownsville was constructed. That was in 1776, and he died soon after, to be buried at the rear of the stone church which was later erected on the site of the log structure, his tomb being under the pulpit of the present First Methodist church of Brownsville.

Among the children born to this Chadda Chalfant was one Walter Brown Chalfant, the youngest of a family of seven. It is the descendant.

FIRST TOURING CAR BROUGHT HERE BURNED

Old Model Winton, Formerly Owned by Mrs.
S. A. Walton, Wrecked on Nelson's Hill in Fallowfield

The Winton automobile, formerly owned by Mrs. S. A. Walton of North Charleroi was burned last night, after it had plunged over an embankment on Nelson's Hill about three miles from town. The machine was driven by Charles S. VanVoorhis and in it were three passengers. He had gone out some distance and was on the way back, just starting up the Nelson hill when the accident occurred. In changing the gear from high to low speed, the latter failed to catch at the proper time, and the brake did not hold. The automobile began plunging backward, and the passengers were forced to jump out. VanVoorhis tried to stop the machine but failed and the car upset over the hill. Gasoline took fire and in a short while the car was a wreck. The machine was one of the oldest in Charleroi, and was the first touring car brought to the town. It was purchased by Mrs. Walton, and used by her for some years and left behind when the family moved east. The machine because of the old model was not highly valued.

ENTIRE PROGRAM TO BE TAKEN UP WITH TALKS ON "PURE ATHLETICS"

Four Addresses Will be Made at Public Union Services at Christ Lutheran Church Sunday Evening

Almost the entire program at the union services Sunday evening for Church League baseball players and the public in general at Christ Lutheran church will be given over to the discussion of "Pure Athletics" by prominent Charleroi pastors, and league officials. All the churches in the league, St. Jerome's Catholic, Episcopal, Methodist, Christian, Washington Avenue Presbyterian, Lutheran, First Presbyterian and Baptist will take part. Besides the principal speakers all the pastors of the various churches will be given a part. The speakers and their topics are Rev. W. D. Fries, pastor of St. Jerome's Catholic church, "Pure Athletics," Jesse K. Johnston, president of Church League, "The Church's Attitude Toward Pure Athletics," Prof. I. T. Daniel, "The Sacrifices in Pure Athletics," Rev. G. G. Kerr, pastor of Washington Avenue church, "The Moral Value of Pure Athletics." The services will begin at 7:30 o'clock, and there will be seats reserved for the various teams.

DEGREE TEAM TO PARTICIPATE IN INITIATORY RITES

Local Members of P. H. C.
Will go to Donora Monday Evening

W. R. Stark, assistant deputy of the Pittsburgh district, Protected Home Circle and Clark Scott of Uniontown, were here last evening in the interests of the local P. H. C. and the local banner degree team. Arrangements are being made for a trip to Donora Monday by the degree team and a number of members of the local circle to assist in initiatory rites for a class of candidates to be induced into membership at the recently organized circle for a class of candidates. The local degree team under the direction of Mr. Stark will do the work. The local people will leave on the 8:17 train.

A new circle will be formed at Monongahela early in August, and a large membership is anticipated at the beginning.

Big Killing by County Officials and Score is Now 400

The crack of rifles and revolvers was heard in every section of Fayette county yesterday and at almost every shot a dog fell. Reports received late last night from all sections of the county show 400 dogs "bit the dust." In Georgia township alone Constable A. Cooley and Tax Collector E. B. Swaney killed 201 dogs. The warfare will continue until all unlicensed or unmuzzled dogs are exterminated. Tax collectors and constables are going about their districts armed with revolvers and rifles and whenever they see a dog without a license plate or muzzle the dog is quickly killed.

For several weeks a quarantine has been in force, but it was not strictly adhered to. On account of several dogs, afflicted with rabies, running at large the State Health authorities ordered the quarantine.

EPISCOPALS CAN HARDLY LOSE THE LEAGUE PENNANT

Next Two Weeks Witness
Close of This Season's Struggle

The next two weeks will witness the closing of the Charleroi Church league for the season, and the winner of the pennant announced. The season has extended from the first of May, and the fight has been close all along with a degree of uncertainty still existing.

The Episcopalists look like winners. They are in the lead of the Christians, now occupying second place, by 167 points. The Episcopalists play two more games, one with the Christians and one with the Methodists. They would have to lose both and the Christians, who play the Episcopalists and Lutherans, win both to permit them to even be tied for first place.

All the rest of the places are very much in doubt. At present it looks as though the Methodist, Christians or Catholics would finally occupy second, third and fourth places, but in what order is mere guess. The Washington Avenues and Lutherans are expected to contest for fifth place, but either team may beat one of the other three out of third or fourth place, or by a wonderful streak of luck, even out of second place. The Baptists and First Presbyterians will likely contest for seventh and last places, but there is a possibility of either of them rising above that.

The games next week are: Monday—Lutherans vs. Catholics; Tuesday—W. A. Presbyterians vs. Baptists; Wednesday—Methodists vs. W. A. Presbyterians; Thursday—Methodists vs. First Presbyterians; Friday—Christians vs. Episcopalists.

Interment was in the McKeesport cemetery today with private services. The pall bearers were W. R. McKean, John Hogan, John Crawford, John H. Freye, C. S. McKean and T. P. Grant.

WHO WILL BEAR THE EXPENSE?

Acheson Overdoing Himself in Eagerness to Call Convention

A BIT OF INFORMATION

It is stated over at the county seat that the announcement that Ernest F. Acheson was circulating a petition for a call for a county convention at the court house Monday for the purpose of organizing for the proposed third party and selecting delegates to the Philadelphia convention that has been called to meet Thursday, July 28, to nominate a State ticket, was somewhat premature, to the promoters. The affair was to be pulled off quietly so far as preliminaries were concerned, in order to give it the appearance of a spontaneous uprising of voters and citizens. Now that the secret has become known before enough representatives of the movement could be drummed up to attend the court house meeting, Mr. Acheson is said to be exceedingly wroth at some of his "free men," in the language of the State call, for leaking the secret.

One of the reasons, and the chief one, by the way, for keeping the proposed county call quiet until all the possible signatures could be secured, is that all who sign the call will be financially responsible for all the expenses, bills and debts that may be contracted in the county campaign. This was learned by the refusal of a number of well known independents over the State to sign the call of the rump State convention at Philadelphia next Thursday. This explains why so few of those who were expected to take a part in the movement signed the call that was published this week. Some of these had learned by bitter experience that such a call for a convention for a party that has no existence makes the signers the party itself, and therefore responsible for all campaign debts that may be contracted. It is said to be the same with calls for a county organization for a new party. Those who sign the call for a convention become the party, and therefore responsible for its debts.

FAIL TO GET ANY MONEY

Content Themselves With Taking Fruit and Eatables From Kitchen

For the second time within a month burglars last night entered the home of Dr. D. E. Kimmell at 612 McKean avenue, but failed to make as rich a haul as they did on the previous occasion. Entrance was effected through a transom over a back door, and the lower part of the house was thoroughly ransacked apparently for money, which was not to be found. The burglars contented themselves with taking some fruit and edibles from the kitchen and from the refrigerator on the back porch.

It is supposed that a small boy was one of the marauders and that he was the one to get through the transom to unlock the kitchen door. This morning on the back porch was found a shoe box which had been carried from Sixth street and on top of this a large fruit basket. On the transom were finger prints. Black finger prints were on a towel in the kitchen, where the marauders had wiped their hands. The sideboard was ransacked and the down stairs rooms thoroughly searched. Not being able to find anything there, it is supposed the thieves went to the kitchen and here helped themselves to table delicacies. From the refrigerator on the porch they took a quantity of fruit. A marked basket was used to carry the stuff away. The police were notified early this morning and are now working on the few clues they have.

Those who have had experience in such movements know of the expenses attached, such as clerical hire, postage, carfare, traveling expenses, printing, hotel bills, salaries of canvassers in effecting an organization, advertising, hall rent and a thousand other items. When it is considered that it is extremely difficult to meet these expenses by the old political parties, and that many of these bills are footed by individuals, or by levying assessments on candidates, it will be seen that the promoters of a new party are responsible to the full extent of their personal resources.

This has caused many who were inclined to be disaffected to steer clear of the movement. A political campaign is a most expensive luxury, and with a hopeless cause, a party to launch and organize, and issues to create, the apathetic public cannot be stirred up without an undue expenditure of the currency of the realm. Those who are at the head of the movement out of motives of possible spoils or revenge, can go ahead and contract debts which the signers to the State and county calls for the conventions will be personally responsible. This of itself is sufficient to doom the movement before it is even born.

Hon. J. K. Tener

Magee in Pittsburgh and were driven in autos to the American Club, where the program as arranged was carried out. Mayor Magee presided, and Chairman Vane made the address informing the candidates of their nomination, to which all responded in speeches of acceptance. The event was attended by a large turnout of members of the American Club and representative Republicans from various parts of the State.

Mr. Tener went to Pittsburgh yesterday afternoon where he visited Mayor Magee and was later joined by State Chairman Walton and other prominent Republicans who arrived from the east. They took dinner together, and discussed the political situation and plans of the campaign. Chairman Walton stated that the Republican party is united and will give Mr. Tener and the rest of the State ticket a bigger majority this fall than has ever been accorded a Governor. The third party movement, he said, would cut no appreciable figure in the result.

ASTRONOMICAL EVENTS.

(From noon today to noon tomorrow.) Sun sets 7:19, rises 4:46; moon rises 9:21 p. m.

Paying the Piper

Those who dance must pay the
piper, and by the same token those
who sign a petition for a call to organize and launch a new political party must likewise be financially responsible for all the expenses incurred
in the campaign by that party.
That being the case, and when it becomes generally known, those inclined
independent political movement in the
organization. It is apt to prove
somewhat expensive.

This obstacle has already been encountered in the call for a rump convention at Philadelphia next Thursday.
The call was signed by a surprisingly
few names, in view of the positive
assertions that people were falling
allied with the movement. When
the call would be financially responsible for all campaign debts incurred,
there was a noticeable cooling of the
secured before hand, those who sign
calls for the State and county, con-
for the expenses of the respective campaigns.

State Should Act

In view of the large number of dogs
by others affected with rabies in this county, the State Health officials should quarantine on all canines and prevent them from running at large in the townships and

boroughs. The State officials have de-
effect, and no section is in greater need
of this precaution than the Beallsville
and Scenery Hill district, which is contiguous to Charleroi. There a dog pronounced affected with hydrophobia
by competent authority is known to
vicinity, and the whole community, including Charleroi, is in danger. In Fayette county, or in portions of it at
pronounced a quarantine on dogs. As it was not strictly adhered to the officials got after the unattached canines
and in one day this week it is stated that at least 400 dogs were slain.
This sort of precaution materially reduces the dangers of hydrophobia, and
it should be inaugurated in Washington county.

Cure for Mob Law

Mob law in Ohio is not such an
exponent of justice as many persons
who chafe the law's delays and uncertainties are prone to believe. A number of those who took part in the recent lynching of the Anti-Saloon League detective at Newark, in that State, now find themselves in jail
with the prospect of a first degree murder indictment hanging over them.
Murder is murder, whether by an individual or by a mob, and each are equally culpable before the law.

end to mobs taking the law into their own hands. The State officials of Ohio have acted promptly in this direction and Governor Harmon is to
decision in upholding the law in his
to a finish, will do more toward putting a stop to lynchings than any other
engage in the vocation.

ELECTRIC SPARKS

A paper calls Roosevelt a press agent. Why bless you, that's only the smallest part of his job. He's the whole show included.

If getting back to nature consists of putting goat calls for a born on an automobile, please let's stop the nonsense.

Has Acheson's new party convention convened yet? That is, his latest convention.

The select front office fraternity gets its when the kicker hoves into view.

It's not every town that can enjoy the distinction of having one of its citizens nominated for Governor like Charleroi today.

It is said that an airship factory is trying to locate in Morgantown. We always thought that old town was pretty flighty without anything of that sort.

Some people say that the moving pictures showing one Indian chasing a whole band of cowboys are not tended to the best influence, and others say that pictures showing couples "spooning" are too soft. Really, let's save the spooning scenes.

It's really very disconcerting, don't you know, for those Government fellows to so dreadfully increase the tariff on cigarette tobacco.

If some of the trolley lines don't move up to time on their schedules, things will become so dreadfully mixed soon that each car will run into itself coming back.

Did you hear that Cannon firing around out at Kansas?

The government has placed a ban on women stenographers, but then considering that nearly all of them are pretty marriageable damsels, you can hardly blame your uncle.

If a man feels like jumping with all feet on one of these things with a cute little hat and a charming pair of booties half hiding a pair of extremely noisy socks, rolling a cigaret, what would his sensations be should he happen upon a young miss going through the same performance?

Do Not Endanger Life When a Charleroi Citizen Shows

You the Cure.

Why will people continue to suffer
the agonies of kidney complaint, backache, urinary disorders, lameness,
headaches, languor, why allow themselves to become chronic invalids,
when a certain cure is offered them?
Doan's Kidney Pills is the remedy
to use, because it gives to the kid-
their work.

If you have any, even one, of the symptoms of kidney diseases, cure
yourself now, before diabetes, dropsy
or Bright's disease sets in. Read this Charleroi testimony:

Mrs. B. Mahoney, 823 McKean avenue, Charleroi, Pa., says: "For a long time a member of our family complained of pains in the small of the back. Seeing Doan's Kidney Pills highly advertised, a box was procured at Piper Bros.' Drug Store and their use was begun. They brought such great relief that I do not hesitate to recommend them to other kidney sufferers."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, States.

Remember the name—Doan's—and take no other.

The Maid's Reply.

As William bent over her fair face he whispered:

"Darling, if I should ask you to French if I might kiss you what would you answer?"

She, calling up her scanty knowledge of the French language, exclaimed: "Billet doux!"—Exchange.

Economy.

Husband—Excuse me, dear, but don't you cook much more for dinner than we can use?—Wife—Of course! If I didn't how could I economize by utilizing leftover dishes?—Continued Later.

Not New.

"Electricity isn't a modern discovery. It is as old as the food."
"How do you make that out?"
"Why? Didn't Noah have to have ark lights?"

Better a blush in the face than a blot in the heart.—Cervantes.

There Should.
Fritz, the gardener, was a stolid German who was rarely moved to extraordinary language. Even the most provocative occasions only caused him to
late evening after a hard day in the
gave him a chair in his roomy car.

Finally the train reached Bloomfield Fritz still slept as it pulled in, and his friend had to shake him and tell him
where he was.

walked straight out of it.

The baggage man sprang to look after him. Fritz slowly picked himself up from the sand by the side of the track, looked up at the door and said,
with no wrath in his voice:

"There should have been some steps."
—Fourth's Companion.

A Wonderful Feat.

In his review of Pierre de Vassiere's book "Le Mort du Roi" the Nueve Nachrichten dwells upon the account of the last seven minutes of Louis XVI as described in the book. These were between 10:15, when the king arrived at the foot of the guillotine, and 10:22, when a shot fired at the end of the Champs Elysees, no one knows by
fallen." The review calls attention to the statement by the author that the king's hands had been plucked by him by the executioner while Louis
was putting on the coat which he was to wear at the end and that
when he reached the platform of the instrument of death he rushed unassisted to the upright farthest from the stairs, "slapping the face of one of the assistant executioners who tried to
doomed monarch manage to perform
the operation?"

Etiquette by Precedent.

For example of how men may live
and act according to precedent there
can be no better reference than to the
lord chamberlain's office in London.
There in quiet rooms day after day
men learned in state etiquette, court
dress and royal functions reach down
heavy volumes to see what was done
on such and such an occasion. Beautiful pictures showing with minute exactness the details of the court costume under various circumstances are ready to their hands. Is the shah of
the monarch of Siam? Is one of the royal princesses to be married? When
any of these events happens the officials at the lord chamberlain's office
know exactly what to do. And if
not been raised for a century or more
they have the faithful official records
occasion.

Eccentricities In Palaces.

The Russian Empress Anne built a
great palace of ice and on occasions
when the fancy seized her punished
several of her dainty courtiers by compelling them to pass the night in this great chamber of state, where they
were almost frozen to death.

The Czar Paul constructed a room formed entirely of huge mirrors where
full uniform—a singular taste for the ugliest man in Russia.

One of the native princes of Java
cooled his palace by making a stream
fall in a cascade over the gateway,
and the Indian despot Tipu Sahib
placed beside his dinner table a life size figure of a tiger denouncing an English officer, the roar of the bear and the shrieks of the victim being

The River Trout.

There is in Spain a river called the Tinto, which has very extraordinary
yellow as a topaz, harden the sand and petrify it in a most surprising manner.
If a stone falls into the river and rests
upon another they both become perfectly united and conglutinated in a
banks as well as the roots of trees
which it dyes of the same hue as its

A Creature From the Fire.

Aristotle believed that some creatures were capable of supporting life
even though confined to the devouring element. He says, "In Cyprus, when the manufacturers of charcoal (lumiburn) many days in the fire, a winged
creature something larger than a great
fly is seen emerging from the stone
and leaping and walking about in the
fire. These creatures perish immediately upon being removed from the furnace."

Before and After.

The Adorer—It's wonderful, old man
what love will enable a fellow to see
in a girl that he never saw before.
The Onlooker—No doubt, but it's equally wonderful what it won't let him see
that he'll see later.

Biblical Instruction.

"What does exegesis mean, father?"
"I can never remember long what it does mean. It is something theological—probably a combination of Exodus and Genesis, about the Deuteronomy."

Prosperity Leads Often to Ambition and ambition to disappointment.

Pottery and Secrecy.

In the royal manufactory of pottery
at Meissen, Saxony, the work was formerly carried on with the utmost secrecy to prevent the processes from becoming known elsewhere. The establishment was a complete fortress
the portcullis of which was not raised
day or night, no stranger being permitted to enter for any purpose whatever. Every workman, even the chief
injunction was formally repeated every
month to the superior officers employed, while the workmen had constantly
before their eyes in large letters the warning motto, "Le Secret Coto Death." It was well known that any
imprisoned for life in the castle of Koenigsstein. Even the king himself when he took strangers of distinction
to visit the works was enjoined to secrecy. One of the foremen, however,
escaped and assisted in establishing a manufactory in Vienna, from which

Her Diamond Necklace.

Brown is a very careful man. He is superlatively careful. So careful is he
that he has insured his insurance
money.

Not only so, but he was careful to be given birthday presents, and on his wife's first birthday after their marriage he gave her a beautiful diamond necklace. This was not as reckless as you might think, for each stone
on the necklace represented a year of
Mrs. Brown's life, and he let every one know that. And he arranged to give
Mrs. Brown a new diamond each birthday. And he let the neighbors know that too.

He has just missed giving his wife a birthday present for the ninth successive year.

As to when greed will conquer pride
and his wife will ask for another birthday present, we shall have to wait and see.—Pearson's.

The Salt Charm Failed.

Some three years before the Franco-German war broke out Count Secken-
dorff accompanied King William I on
his visit to Napoleon III, and was present at the celebrated déjeuner given in the Pavilion de Diane at Fountainebleau. King William, who was sitting next the empress, was asked by her to pass the salt, and in compliance with this request he threw a little salt over his shoulder. Upon the empress exclaiming, "Why do you do
that?" the king explained that in his country it was the custom to do so
when passing the salt to ward off bad luck and any chance of a quarrel.
The empress in a pretty fit of speech at once replied: "But surely there is no danger of anything interfering with our friendship." In less than three years the Germans had crossed the Rhine.—London Spectator.

Why Not Pass the Plate?

They ought to pass the plate at church weddings. It comes natural to do it in church, and to do so would
add a pretty and useful employment to
the duties of the ushers, who always
have a little spare time before the bride arrives. And, really, getting married is more expensive than ever,
and, though wedding presents are excellent in their way, what the young people usually need the most is cash.
Instead of the list of gifts which the
newspapers sometimes print we should
000." That would be nice. It is much easier to store and care for money than plate and glass. And money always fits and there is no such thing as
an embarrassing duplication of dollars.
—Life.

He Saved the Patent Office.

When in the war of 1812 the British,
who had taken Washington, trained
their guns upon the patent office. Dr.
Thornton, throwing himself directly
before the guns, cried:

"Are you Englishmen or Goths and Vandals? This is the patent office—a depository of the ingenuity and inventions of the American nation, in which
the whole civilized world is interested.
Would you destroy it? Then let the
charge pass through my body."

And the building was spared. Twenty-four years afterward, however, it was destroyed by fire, together with everything in it.

In Westminster Abbey.

Fox's tomb is perhaps the most ridiculous in the abbe, but others run it hard—the naked figure of General Wolfe supported by one of his staff
in full regimentals and receiving a crown from Victory; William Wilber-
force apparently listening to Sheridan
telling a comic tale and contorting his
features in the endeavor not to laugh;
the Sir Cloudesley Shovel, in periwig
and Roman toga, which excited the
the monuments erected by the East India company, with palm trees and
other tropical exuberances, to the memory of great soldiers, like Sir Eyre Coote. From the point of view of good taste a dictator would be justified in dismissing these and many more to the stonemason's yard.—Cornhill Magazine.

How Pausanias Died.

Pausanias, the Greek general, died
of self administered poison. When hotly pursued by those sent to apprehend him on a charge of treason and
sacrilege he took refuge in the sanctuary of a temple. Unable to evade him by force and also unwilling to violate the sanctuary, the officers waited at the entrance and began to un-roof the building. When he could be seen they noticed that he was chewing
something which proved to be a quill
filled with poison. By the time the work had advanced to the point of admit of their entrance he was in a dying condition.

Why the Wind Waits.

In his book on "The Picturesque St.
Lawrence" Clifton Johnson tells of the curious superstition of Montreal which explains why the wind is always blowing at the point where St.
Sulpice and Notre Dame streets meet,
close by the towering cathedral.

It seems that one day, while the church was in process of building, the Wind and the Devil were walking
down Notre Dame street, and the Devil after regarding with a trown of disapproval the graceful outlines of the new edifice rising before him exclaimed:

"What is this? I never saw it before."

"Very likely not," responded the Wind, "and I dare to go in there."
"You dare to go in there, do you?" cried the Devil. "Well, I will go in if you will promise to wait here until I come out."

"Agreed," said the Wind.

So his satanic majesty went in. But he has not come out yet, and the Wind
is still waiting for him at the corner.

The Spirit of Liberty

It was in the town that modern de-
efforts of the kings and barons to prevent it, the spirit of liberty arose to assert itself in the larger towns in the shape of the banners which guarantee to the people certain commercial and political rights—rights which, once obtained, were never to be surrendered.
Before the middle of the eleventh century there were many of these "charter" towns which possessed the right of electing their own magistrates, sheriffs, and judges, and regulating their own laws. The word "liberty" from the country were welcomed by the townspeople and aimed to larger freedom. These free towns were first known in Spain, from which country
they slowly spread over Europe. The
burghesses naturally offered protection
and freedom to all who would flee to
them from the feudal estates, and thus
slowly, but surely, the good work went on until the worst of despotisms were destroyed.—Arena.

Reptiles That Walk Erect.

Lizards of several sorts can walk
and run easily on their hind legs. The Australian water lizard, which is three or four feet in length keeps quite
erect when traversing long distances
on land. It is found in the neighborhood of river banks and masses much of its time in shallow water.

This reptile has a long and slender tail, and on its hind legs on level ground, keeping the front legs out of its running.
When attacked it rears up the fold of skin which sticks out like a ruff at right angles round the neck, giving it a most formidable aspect, so that does that attack and kill larger lizards will often retreat before a frilled lizard at bay.

There is also a tree lizard in Australia that moves in a similar way. All these species walk on all fours when merely moving about or going short
distances.

Couldn't Hear Them.

"I've been worried about my hearing for some time," said a real banker, who tells the story on himself, "and finally the fear of getting deaf became
a sort of obsession to me, and I decided to go over to New York to consult a specialist. I got over there and went to see the doctor and he asked so many questions that I was more than ever, and I was feeling pretty blue as I walked down Fifth avenue with a friend.

"Suddenly I saw two 'special' trollers' coming down a cross street filled with children waving flags and apparently having an awfully good time,
but I couldn't hear a sound in an instant, without stopping to realize that I could hear all the other noises of the
around and seized him by the arm and shouted:

"Heavens, Jo, I'm deaf. I can't hear those children at all."

"Neither can I," said my friend, with a roar of laughter. "They're mutes."—Philadelphia Times.

SHOOTING WHALES.

Modern Whalers Use a Cannon and an Explosive Harpoon.

Whaling with modern methods in Alaskan waters is an exciting game, especially for those who are new to the business. The modern whaling steamer is a little vessel almost round on the bottom which enables it to be turned and managed with the greatest ease. Mounted at the bow is a small cannon that shoots a harpoon weighing more than 100 pounds and having an explosive head called the bomb.

If the shot is good and the harpoon is planted squarely behind the fin, the bomb crashes into the lungs, killing instantly, if not the struggle may last for several hours.

After a whale has been killed the carcass is brought alongside the boat and inflated so that it will float. A long coil of rubber hose, one end of which is attached to a pump and the other to a hollow spear pointed tube of steel, with perforations along its entire length, is used for this purpose.

The spear is thrust well down into the whale's side, the air pump started and the body slowly filled with air. When inflated enough to keep it afloat the tube is withdrawn, the incision plugged with oakum and the carcass cast off. A buoy with a flag is attached to the body, and it is then set adrift to be picked up at the end of the day's hunting.

The whaling station is a group of buildings situated in a bay or cove near enough to the feeding grounds to allow the steamer to come in each night with the day's catch. The whales are anchored at a buoy in front of a long, inclined platform, upon which they are drawn, tail first, by means of a steam winch.

The saying that every part of the pig but the squeal is now of market value is also a fact with the whale. Not a particle of the animal is wasted. After the skeleton is stripped of flesh it is disarticulated and the bones chopped in pieces.

The blubber is tried out for oil, and the meat and bones are boiled for the same purpose. Later the flesh is artificially dried and sifted, making a fine guano, and the bones are ground up for fertilizer. Even the blood is boiled and dried with the flesh, and the water in which the blubber has been tried out makes excellent glue. The fins and tail, after being sliced into thin strips, are salted and barreled and shipped to Japan as an article of food.

World's Work

BALANCING AN EGG

All the world knows how Columbus on a historic occasion made an egg stand on end. After many learned theories had been advanced on balancing the egg he set the egg on end by of course mashing down hard enough to form a base, but the problem is capable of still another solution. It is an easy matter to set an egg on a plate for instance, if you know how. The trick is impossible until the egg has been boiled in an upright position. The position of the hardened yoke at the end of the shell lowers the center of gravity until the sphere can be spun or even balanced with ease.

Weight of Brain.

The average weight of the human brain is forty-nine and a half ounces for males and forty-four ounces for females. In males the minimum weight is about thirty-four ounces and the maximum sixty-six ounces. In females the minimum weight is thirty-one ounces and the maximum fifty-six ounces. In newborn infants the brain weighs about 11.65 ounces for the male and ten ounces for the female.

The Word "Belfry."

The word "belfry" had originally no connection with "bell," an idea which is now immediately associated with the term. The first meaning given is "watchtower," from the middle English "berfry," a watchtower. The first part of this word is connected with "borough," the second with "free." As the practice grew of hanging "bells" in such towers people reminded themselves of the fact by changing the word "berfry" into the modern "belfry."

Still Possible

"Uncle, can't I be a pirate when I grow up?"
"Sure you can, son. What do you want to pirate—books or plays?"
—Louisville Courier-Journal.

The Famous Prima Donna of a Fine Business Woman.

Audubon Patti never suffered from the financial timidity of a Jenny Lind. Not only was she a supreme vocalist, but, as Colonel Mapleson remarked, "No one ever approached her in the art of obtaining from a manager the greatest possible sum he could by any possibility contrive to pay." But the musical miracle was the spoiled darling of her day, and she never failed to obtain exactly what she wanted. She was first engaged in London in 1861, by Mapleson, to sing four nights "on approval" and, in case of success, to obtain £40 a week. This contract was not fulfilled, however, for being hard pressed financially she had borrowed £50 from a rival manager and her receipt proved practically a contract.

This was the beginning of a career so dazzling that its successive steps are simply a series of increasing bank notes. In 1872 she obtained in London 200 guineas a night, since she insisted on having more than Christine Nilsson, who was receiving £200. She sang twice a week. Ten years later she was given £5,000 a night. Her famous contract to sing in America provided that the money should be paid to her at 2 o'clock on the day she sang; also a drawing room and sleeping car to be especially built for her, with conservatory, fanery, etc. Further, there was to be deposited to her credit $50,000 for payment of the last ten performances—Patti's favorite device. She thus received about twenty times what Mario and Grisi got.

Her private car, incidentally, cost $50,000 and contained a silver bath and gold keys to the doors to save nothing of a $2,000 piano. Patti gave to the manager only her voice and her costumes. Her drawing capacity justified this. "Lucia" as an example was sung to an average of $14,000. "Traviata" drew more, since she sang more notes. It was a frequent occurrence among the poorer music lovers to buy a club ticket and each take turns at hearing her for twenty minutes. If one overstayed his time he paid for the entire ticket. Some mathematicians computed by dividing the number of notes sung into the sum paid that in "Semiramide" Patti received 42 cents for each note. This was found to be just 7 1/2 cents per note more than Rossini got for writing the whole opera.

RACE WAGERS IN INDIA.

The native of India wagers his money according to the colors worn by the jockeys and takes no heed of the merits of the horses, or he will back a horse ridden by his favorite jockey, no matter whether the animal is a rank outsider or not.

His ideas of gambling, in fact, are distinctly queer. Some of the more wealthy Indians form things and take every horse to the track, thus gaining the satisfaction of seeing a winner every time. It is a sign of late years that the native of India has become a habit of gambling on the turf and in the city. The bulk of the betting is done in the city, where the natives of India are the most active. Indeed, the authorities are somewhat concerned at the growth of the betting which takes place among Indian natives. It being asserted that as much as thirty lacs of rupees (about $300,000) is lost and won in the course of a season.

The ignorant masses have not a great deal of actual money to wager but so badly bitten are many of them with the craze for betting at race meetings that they frequently wager what little property they possess on a horse, and if they lose they simply replace their loss by stealing a neighbor's goods. The consequence is that when the racing season comes around the police are kept very busy dealing with cases of petty larceny and other crimes involving loss of property.—London Tit Bits.

BILL LANGE'S FEAT.

One of the Famous Old Outfielders' Sensational Catches.

The greatest individual feat ever performed was one by which Bill Lange saved a game for Chicago and $200 for himself in Washington in 1895. There is an odd story connected with the play. Lange had missed a train in Boston two days before, failed to reach New York in time to play there, and Anson had fined him $100. Thereupon he missed a train to Washington—arrived on the grounds after the teams had practiced and just in time to play, and for that Anson fined him another $100. The game that afternoon went eleven innings, Chicago scoring one run in the eleventh. There were two men out and a runner on the bases when "Kip" Selbach, then one of the hardest hitters in the business, smote the ball a terrific blow and sent it flying over Lange's head toward the center field fence. The hit seemed a sure home run, but Lange, a man weighing 225 pounds turned and without looking sprinted desperately straight out toward the fence, and with the flying ball. At the last in fact, as the ball was going over his head, Lange turned, stuck up both hands, turned a somersault and crashed against the fence. The boards splintered, one entire panel crashed out, and out of the wreckage crawled Lange, holding the ball in his hand and the crowd went mad. Lange came limping to, with the crowd standing on seats shouting, and he said to Anson, "Fines go, cap?" "Nope," said Anson, "and the catch had saved the bigfelder $200."—Eugene S. Fullerton in American Magazine.

THE MYSTERY OF MARS.

With a planet so old as Mars and so far along in the process of life extinction the conditions of life would be severe, and only a highly intellectual and scientifically developed race could endure and master them. The engineering skill and constructive capacity to control the annual floods from the poles, store the water and build the thousands of miles of huge canals would require scientific knowledge beyond that possessed by us at the present time and financial resources in excess of those we have yet accumulated. The notion that finds the digging of a little ditch at L'Anapora so great a task would be helpless in the face of such a problem as these thousands or miles of Martian canals, if, indeed, canals they be. Yet in view of the great life age of Mars, such higher intelligence would be natural in the regular process of development assuming that it has ever been the aide of intellectual life.

Scientists are in the main in a receptive state on this subject. Phenomena, not to be admitted as the existence of life on that planet has been proved. They do not deny it but call for greater proof than a plausible theory. Among others than scientists there is in the main a disposition not to accept the Martian human life theory or the theory of life on any of the thousands of spheres that wheel and revolve in the infinite space. They seem to think that such a theory conflicts with reason and dwarf's man and his importance in the scheme of creation.

This seems to be a very narrow view to take, since it appears to set bounds upon the infinite power and creative desires of the Almighty, whose great scheme of mortal and immortal life is not necessarily confined to a single planet or the few billions of human beings who are born and die upon it. As to dwarfing the importance of man, a few billions more added to the billions on earth would make little difference. Man is at best a small and insignificant creature, but if all embracing wisdom, power and love takes cognizance of him it would be having those infinite qualities to say that one planet must be by abiding place. Therefore the question of life in intelligence on Mars or any other planet of the solar system or the other great systems in remote space should be purely and simply a scientific one, to be accepted as true only when proved, but not to be rejected through sentiment or for any other reason whatever except lack of proof.—St. Louis Star.

FILIAL DUTY.

In China the "Book of Filial Duty" has been employed to instruct the young for the last 2500 years. In it are twenty-four examples for good boys. What these examples are like may be understood from the story of Wu Meng example No. 20. Wu Meng it seems was very obedient to his parents. One day at the age of eight he noticed with pain that the mosquitoes annoyed his parents while they were trying to sleep. Presently he hit upon a plan to rescue them.

Says the author of this classic: "The buzzing of the mosquitoes sounds like 'ting ring' and their united hum is almost equal to thunder. His tired parents are reclining on their beds their countenances already sunk in slumber. Legions of mosquitoes fiercely attack them alternately retreating and advancing. The insects disturb the dreaming sleepers, and with annoyance they toss from side to side."

Wu sees them sucking his parents' blood, which causes his heart to grieve. His flesh, he thinks can be easily pierced, but that of his parents is hard to penetrate. Lying on the bed, he threw off his clothes, and soon feeling the pain of their attacks, he cried, "I have no dread of you, nor have you any reason to fear me!"

"Although I have a fan, I will not use it, nor will I strike you with my hand. I will lie very quiet and let you gorge to the full!"

THE MONEY QUESTION.

An Inquisitive Youngster and an Ingenious Father.

"Papa," began Gunston junior, "when the government of the United States began to coin gold and silver money it was necessary to buy the gold and silver, wasn't it?"

"Yes, my son," replied Gunston senior rather cautiously.

"Of course, papa," resumed the youngster, "you'll be able to tell me where the government got the money to buy the gold and silver?"

"Why—er—of course," stammered Gunston senior as he put down the paper and gazed thoughtfully at the boy.

"Now, let me understand you. The government wanted to coin money, and in order to do so it was necessary to purchase gold and silver. You want to know where the government got the money to buy the gold and silver?"

"That's right," chuckled Gunston junior gleefully, and a great joy filled his being as he thought of his all important sire struggling with the simple question.

"Why, sonny, the government simply issued dollar bills and bought gold and silver with them. Anything else?"

"Yes," said Gunston junior. "Where did the government get money to buy paper for the dollar bills?"—Harper's Weekly.

CHEERFUL OUTLOOK.

Making It Pleasant For the Stupidest Traveler.

An English tourist traveling on foot through one of our mountainous regions, studying the people, asked a man whom he met to direct him to a certain cabin at which he had been advised to stay overnight. "Going that way?" said the man. "Well, Tom's a first rate, take him just right, but he's mighty queer."

"What do you mean?" asked the traveler.

"Well, it's like this," and the man looked at the stranger in a calm, impersonal way. "He'll be setting outside, most probably, and he'll see you coming. He'll take a good look at you and if you don't suit him he may set the dog on you."

"If he don't and you get to talking with him and say anything he don't just like he may throw you down and tramp on you. But if you're too careful in your talk, on the other hand, he's liable to take you for a spy and use his gun just and listen to explanations after a while."

"But it's no use trying to get by without stopping," concluded the man with evident reason of the prospect he was opening up to the stranger. "If you was to undertake that 'would be all up with you, for he'd think you was proud and buggery."

"If you want to come out of the mountain whole, don't go past Tom's cabin without stopping, whatever you do!"—Yours a Companion.

The Strenuous National Game of the American Women.

There is always something impressive about a crowd that is swayed by a single emotion. You get an impression of force, says Mary Heaton Vorse in Success Magazine. These women, who a few moments ago had been quiet shoppers, formed a mob. They swayed and pushed as though moved by a common impulse toward a table where were the embroideries. From their throats came a little dull growl, a curious noise—the whisper of a mob.

The noise of a mob in joy or in anger or in fright or just its restless murmur as it waits is different from any other noise that comes from the human throat—quite distinct, of a curious, annual timber. I heard it once on the occasion of the throwing of a bomb, again from a crowd waiting for a bank to open and a third time in a theater when fire had been called, and now here it was in miniature from a couple of hundred women waiting to buy ten cent embroideries.

They were poor women with shawls and baskets, women with threadbare clothes carefully brushed, who must think before spending each dime in the dollar, but for once indulging in the great sport of American women—bargain hunting.

Fashions in Borneo.

According to the rules of Borneo fashion it is deemed necessary to mold one's limbs into a more supple form than that bestowed by nature. This is done really effectively by winding strong brass wire round the ankles, the wrists, under the knees and above the elbows of children. Growth at these points is, in consequence, greatly hampered, with the result that the limbs come to be deformed or according to Dyak ideas, brought into proper shape. The headless coconuts of a curious headwork cap, and around his neck a bird's nest to be worn bangles of plaited fiber and strings of cowrie shells. These shells, by the way, as in other parts of the world, are used as currency. A yard of fiber or twenty to thirty cowrie shells represent the value of a penny. The white armlets are made of another species of shells.

What a Toad Enjoys

There are few things more amusing than to watch a toad submitting to the operations of a back scratching. He will at first look somewhat suspiciously at the twig which you are advancing toward him, but after two or three passes down his back his manner undergoes a marked change, his eyes close with an expression of infinite rapture, he plants his feet wider apart, and his body swells out to nearly double its ordinary size, as if to obtain by these means more room for enjoyment. Thus he will remain until you make some sudden movement which startles him or until he has had as much petting as he wants, when, with a puff of regretful delight, he will reduce himself to his usual dimensions and hop away, bent once more on the pleasures of the chuse.

In Hearing.

They stood upon the crest of the mountain and gazed off through the purple distances.

"Daring," he whispered, bending closer, "give me a kiss—just one!"

"No, Clarence," she answered timidly. "Some one will hear us. There may be other ears around."

"Oh, because I have so often heard of mountaineers I thought perhaps there might be some around, and—"

Revenge

"That orphan Belle flitted for the aged millionaire played a spiteful trick at her wedding."

"What did he do?"

BAPTISTS BEAT

PRESBYTERIANS

IN FINAL ROUND

Overcome Lead and Score

Winning Run With

By overcoming a lead in the final inning with two out, the Baptists succeeded in winning from the First Presbyterians last evening. The game was somewhat of a hit and run affair and was featured by the number of good solid cracks. The Baptists scored one in the first on a life and a single. On five hits for seven bases, an error and a stolen base the Presbyterians earnestly chased around four runs in the second session, to follow up this record by scoring one in the fourth on a passed ball, and this ended their score getting. The Baptists got around twice in the fourth on four hits for a total of five bases, and a stolen base. By scoring one in the sixth they made preparations for a final inning rally. In that last session Sample biffed one for two bases, then went third on an out to score when Coliffe slammed the pill for two. Coliffe went third on Morris, single, and scored on Motts, single. The score:
